Meeting Closes at Detroit—2:17 Trot Furnishes Exciting Finishes—Won by Dr. Thorne.

DETROIT, Sept. 20.—Seven events, including a free for all pace, which Braden Direct won in straight heats, brought the Grand circuit harness meeting at the State fair to a close Friday. All of the races except the 2:17 trot were captured in straight heats. That went to the limit, furnished some of the most exciting struggles of the afternoon and was finally won by Dr. Thorne. For the first time since Monday, the sun shone. The track was slow however, but despite this, surprisingly fast time was made. Braden Direct won the first heat of the free for all in 2:02 3-4 and the last half mile was run 1:00 1-4. Walter Cochato was at the black horse's side all the way and they raced neck and neck to the finish. Pickles finished strongly in the second heat but the winner had too much speed in reserve.

Geers, driving Maria Bellini, won the third heat of the 2:17 trot, after Dr. Thorne had taken the first two. Then Murphy drove George Rex to victory in the fourth heat, but Snow's horse made victory practically certain by finishing second. He took the final heat by inches from the black colt.

Peter Billiken had Nara Prime to contend with but won an impressive victory in the 2:11 trot. Marietta, a strong favorite, did not disappoint her backers in the 2:11 pace. Princess Patch tried hard in the second heat but the black mare outstrutted her. Favorite won both the 2:17 pace and the 2:08 pace. Neither Cubanola H. nor Margot Hal was seriously threatened in any of the heats. Dr. Holcomb was the only starter for the Michigan Trotting Horse Breeders' futurity for three-year-olds. He raced one heat in 2:23 1-4 and was awarded the event.

In the first heat of the 2:17 trot, Baroness Helen, turning onto the stretch slipped and fell. Driver Fleming was thrown in the midst of a large field of racers but he and the horse escaped with bruises.

Cincinnati Takes Ten Inning Game 1-0—Brooklyn Nabs Second

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 20.—Brooklyn and Cincinnati broke even in a double header Friday, the locals winning the first game which went the full nine to nothing, and the visitors capturing the second two to one. Both games were well played, the fielding being sharp and the pitchers holding up their end. Collins and Moran made spectacular catches in the first contest, while Marsans distinguished himself by a marvelous catch in the second.

In the first contest Reubach did not allow a hit until the fifth inning. In the second game after one man had been retired in the second inning Hoblitzel walked, stole second and cantered home when Dodge tripled. This put an end to the run-getting until Brooklyn's half of the ninth, when with one man out, Daubert doubled and scored on Smith's two-bagger. The latter scored the winning run when Fisher singled.

First game: Brooklyn . . . 000 000 000 0-0 8 0 Cincinnati . . . 000 000 000 1-1 7 0 Reubach and Fisher pitched and Kline, Empires—Byron and Rigler.

Rube Goldberg Still Talks About a Place Called Paris

By R. L. GOLDBERG.

NAPLES, Italy, Sept. 19.—This writing finds me in the bath tub trying to lose some of the detachable Neapolitan scenery that gracefully slid down my neck during a short ride through the junk district of Italy. Knowing that it will take at least four hours to unearth the few human landmarks that are still left on my body, I slip mentally over the border and sneak back into Paris, where the wine is sweet and the tips are many.

As I rub my hand over the top of my head and feel something that closely resembles the surface of a fur coat worn by a chauffeur whose automobile just burned up, I recall the strange things that happened to me during the memorable hour I spent in a Parisian barber shop.

I needed a haircut. The hotel clerk said the barber spoke English. So I was fairly confident when I told the bewhiskered tonsorial artist in distinct United States that I only wanted a hair cut. He shook his head, though he knew I only wanted a hair cut. He was my friend.

He pushed me into an ordinary arm chair and tried to break my neck by hitting me under the chin with his brush. I repeated that I only wanted a hair cut. He continued to lather my face. It developed later that he spoke English only on Tuesdays and Fridays, and this happened to be Monday.

The barber wore a frock coat. The starched cuffs of his white shirt came down to his knuckles. His beard was parted in the middle, and the betting was 10 to one he wore corsets. So why argue with a man like that? He spent more time on his own face than he did on mine. His principal object seemed to be to keep from soiling his cuffs. I was determined to put his cuffs off the blink if I had to buy him a new pair.

Way Barbers Do Things. When he finished operating on my face he handed me a white coat to put on. I thought he expected me to shave him. So I jumped at the chance. But I soon found out it was the French custom for the patient to wear a coat instead of a cloth. Then the slaughter commenced. He took a pair of manicuring scissors about half an inch long out of his vest pocket, and started in. He went at it like a woman taking the busting out of a new skirt. As a barber he was an expert dressmaker. He cut the hair as they came off. To show me he was liberal, he gave them back to me by throwing them down my shirt.

When he had finished picking out pin feathers with his delicate little instrument, he grabbed an atomizer and started to spray me from head to foot. He hadn't used a drop of water on me during my entire visit. Maybe the pipe was busted.

He finally made a menacing move, as if to tie a piece of baby ribbon around my wrist, and I fled to my room, where I remained concealed until my wounds started to heal. I finally emerged, looking very pale from the long confinement, and took the barber out to dinner. I could not be happy unless I knew he had soiled his cuffs. So I ordered him a bowl of soup. That put me even.

After dinner I put the barber in a taxi and told the driver to go the wrong way. I wandered around, trying to get a little dose on the Parisian population, so I would be in a position to compare the French with the American girls if I ever lived long enough to get a real line on the American girls. I could not meet all the Parisian women. Some of them were out of town.

As you walk along the street you are apt to ruin your eyesight trying not to let anything get by. It is best to spot one here and there and try to absorb a few details without attempting to index all the bears in Paris. Here are a few things that may, or may not, be true about the ladies of the French capital.

1. They have big feet. 2. They use plenty of makeup to hide their faulty complexions. 3. They are not particular how much attention they attract. 4. They are expert smokers. 5. Their figures make you forget all the things you don't like about them. 6. If there is anything they don't know about hats and the way to wear them, it hasn't been discovered yet. Of course, this is all absolutely new stuff, and there is nothing more to know about Parisian women. Maybe some day I'll tell you all about the Japanese people, if I get a chance to stop at Tokio for 20 minutes.

Hard Blow to Jaw Does Work—Oklahoma Man Outweighs Opponent by 26 Pounds.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—Carl Morris, heavyweight of Sapulpa, Okla., knocked out Al. Reich of this city in the second round of a scheduled ten round bout here Friday night. A hard right to the point of the jaw after Reich had been worn down by considerable body punishment ended the bout. This was Reich's second professional bout, as he made his debut a week ago when he defeated Sailor White.

Morris, who weighed 235 pounds, an advantage of 26 pounds over the local man, showed considerable improvement both in ring tactics and physical condition.

PIRATES AND PHILLIES IN TWO SCRAPPY SESSIONS

Ludrus and Hendrix Mix in First—Becker and Dolan Furnish Fun in Second.

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 20.—Pittsburgh took the first game three to two in ten innings from Philadelphia Friday, and the second was called at the end of the ninth on account of darkness with the score tied at three runs each. Both teams put up a scrappy fight and there was a near-fist fight in both contests. In the tenth inning of the first game Ludrus lost his temper when Hendrix elbowed him at first and hit Hendrix in the back with the ball. They started for each other, but umpires and players intervened. Both were put out of the game.

In the second game Becker in sliding into third brought his foot against Dolan's stomach, followed by the two made a rush, but Umpire Brennan threw his bulky frame between them and players pulled them away. Both continued to play and kept up their jabber at each other throughout.

With the score tied at one each in Philadelphia's half of the first game Sherwood Magee stole home in the tenth inning. Hendrix pitched a fine game and had the better of Mayer.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—Love, a recruit from Atlanta who stands 6 feet 7 inches, started his first game for Washington Friday and was returned the winner over Detroit 2 to 1 in the last game of the season between the two teams.
